British-French Salvage Bid In Suez Due To Be Shunned

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld is expected to turn down recommendations from his top advisers in Egypt that British-French salvage crews be used to help clear the Suez Canal.

Informed sources indicated Hammarskjöld felt the U. N. salvage fleet he has been organizing will be able to do the job quickly and efficiently without any help from Britain and France.

The secretary general said in a statement Tuesday night the U. N. had built up a fleet "able to begin operations immediately."

Hammarskjöld was reported to have 10 salvage ships ready to start removing sunken ships, bridges and other debris as soon as the last British and French units leave Egypt. The salvage vessels have been drawn from Denmark, the Netherlands, Germany, Italy and Belgium.

Another 10 ships are scheduled to reach the canal area by Thursday and 11 others are due later this month.

Hammarskjöld also was said to have 600 crewmen, divers, salvage experts and others lined up to begin the clearing operation, which diplomats estimate can cost as much as $60 million.

A U. N. spokesman said Hammarskjöld's decision to use neutral workmen was his own idea and not Egypt's. Egypt has declared it will not permit British and French crews to be used.

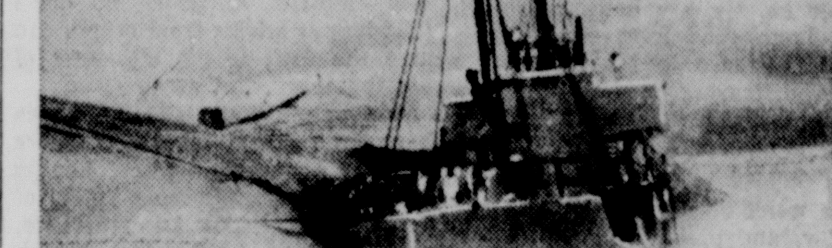

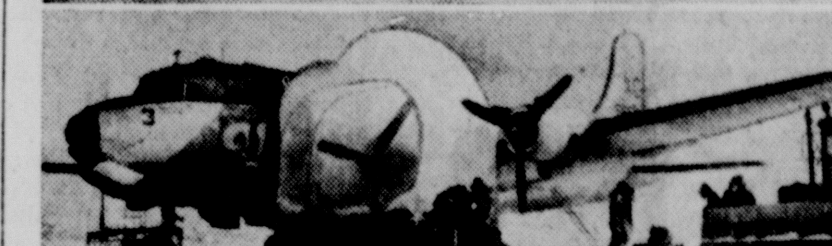

Vice Adm. L. F. Durnford-Slater, commander of British naval forces at Port Said, said a compromise plan to use part of the British-French salvage fleet and some 200 of its men had been approved and forwarded to Hammarskjöld by Canadian Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, the U. N. Emergency Force commander, and U. S. Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, chief of the U. N. canal clearing operation.

Although they still refused to turn their ships over to outside crews, the British and French agreed to put their men in civilian clothes for the clearance job and to remove all large guns aboard.

However, a spokesman for Egypt's Suez Canal authority said the proposal would not even be considered until all British and French forces had quit Egypt. This apparently precluded any chance that the compromise proposal might be adopted, since Britain and France have said there must be prior agreement or their salvage vessels will be withdrawn from Port Said with their last military units.

'Sloppy' Budget Irks Councilmen

Members of city council and some of the department heads agreed last night that the way Circleville handles its annual budget is pretty sad sack. One lawmaker denounced it as downright "sloppy."

The discussion arose as council prepared to pass the annual appropriation ordinance, essential to keep the payroll clicking on schedule. The measure was eventually passed without dissent.

Criticism of the way the budget was placed before council was carried over from the previous meeting, when some of the lawmakers said it was impossible to "act on the budget" because it was too badly garbled.

Last night, it was evident the budget still didn't satisfy very many—but out of it all came a hazy sort of plan to reform the budgetary procedure next year. For one thing, it was agreed that the mayor should hold a meeting with department heads well in advance of budget time to confer on the city's fiscal outlook.

CRITICISM of the way the budget appeared got under way when Councilman Dudley Carpenter said:

"I for one hate to see this thing go into the city records in the shape it is."

"I thought we should be able to have it done in business-like manner."

Critics of the budget's appearance were at first inclined to question City Solicitor Kenneth Robbins, but he made it clear that he also feels the city is far behind the times in its budgetary policies. At the same time he emphasized that he, personally, isn't "worried about it."

Carpenter pointed to the budget presented by Ervin Leist for the water and sewage department, commending its neat and complete appearance and asking why the same thing could not be done by all other city departments. Leist and several others explained how this, to some degree, could not be done, because of different operating systems.

Carpenter, however, recalled how the budget was in "sloppy form" when it was shown to council at the previous meeting, and he added:

"The least we could require from the mayor is that he should have the budget in readable form for council."

THIS SOON led to a discussion on how much—or little—the mayor has to do with setting up the budget, and how virtually all of the authority rests on council's finance committee, headed by Councilman George Crites.

In fact, it was soon brought out that "the budget had been approved months ago" after being drawn up by the committee—which cast a veil of uncertainty over all of council's deliberations last night.

"I don't know what they're worrying about the budget for," City Auditor Lillian Young said early Wednesday. "The budget was approved months ago."

Critics did not attend last night's meeting.

Council continued with its discussion, agreeing that the way the city operates its finances through the year is "antiquated"—but apparently the best one for Circleville under circumstances prevailing.

Robbins aimed a blast during the discussion at the "lack of planning" that leads to a disorderly budget. And he touched upon the way council appropriates money through the year to meet the various needs as they appear—instead of making an effort to have the needs met in year-end budgetary planning.

"The one who comes up here and talks the longest and loudest gets the money," Robbins declared.

Phone Chiefs, Union Holding New Parley

COLUMBUS (AP)—Union and management sat down at the bargaining table again today in an effort to end the long, violence-marked telephone strike in southeastern Ohio.

Representatives of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. and the Communications Workers of America resumed the bargaining session that ended late Tuesday night without any apparent results.

For nine and a half hours the union and company met with federal conciliators. When the session recessed, J. Curtis Fletcher, CWA national director, said "no movement has been made in either direction." He added that the issue of a union shop clause and other stumbling blocks to a contract settlement were discussed.

Today's meeting, he said, may see some concrete offers made.

The CWA has been on strike against Ohio Consolidated since July 15. On Oct. 15, the company shut down its Portsmouth, New Boston and Sciotovalle exchanges after a number of rock-throwing and cable-cutting incidents. The union has denied responsibility for the violence.

The company restored emergency service in Portsmouth Sunday, but has kept the manually operated exchanges in New Boston and Sciotovalle closed.

Meanwhile, Frank A. Thernes, a representative of the CWA, reported the union has $15,000 ready for distribution to some 600 strikers.

Thernes said the money came from CWA locals throughout the nation. He added that it will break down to about $10 for each striker plus $10 for each child of a striker.

In addition, the Ohio CIO Council has been collecting toys for distribution to children of CWA workers.

Church Arsonist Suspect Nabbed

TRENTON, N. J. (AP)—Mercer County Prosecutor Marion Volpe said today a suspect has admitted starting fires in five Trenton churches, including a $3 million cathedral blaze which took three lives.

The man was not identified. Volpe said he is being held for a psychiatric examination.

Volpe said the man admitted starting four church fires here last Sunday and the blaze last March which destroyed St. Mary's Roman Catholic Cathedral. Msgr. Richard T. Crean and two housekeepers died in the blaze.

Sunday, the historic First Methodist Church was damaged to the extent of $200,000 and another church suffered $500 damage.

Peiping Feels Time Near For U.S. Friendship

India Premier Says American Position Not Exactly 'Rigid'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Indian Prime Minister Nehru said today he had given the "thinking" of Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai to President Eisenhower, including the Red view that it is time for the United States to make a friendly move toward Communist China.

Nehru told a 45-minute news conference that his talks with Eisenhower here had shown him that the United States policy "is not as rigid as I had thought." He indicated this might apply to the U. S. attitude toward Red China but said he could not say specifically.

Nehru also said he thinks the United States and Russia are "not far apart" on problems of how to establish a world wide disarmament system. The great difficulty between them, he said, is a lack of confidence and the most urgent need is for measures to create confidence.

Nehru said that he thinks the changes which have occurred in the Soviet Union since Josef Stalin died are fundamental and the "post-Stalinist policy cannot be suppressed."

He characterized the changes as moves toward "democratization and liberalization."

PART OF THE reason for the move toward more democracy in Russia, he said, is that the Soviet people are becoming increasingly literate and "technically minded."

The Russian people "passionately desire peace," he added, and are "extremely friendly and hospitable."

He said he doubted that any Communist country could ever become a parliamentary democracy like the United States or India but he said that he thought "other forms" of democracy which would

4 In Family Die In Apartment

GLENDALF, Calif. (AP)—Police broke into an apartment Tuesday and discovered a gas heater burning full blast, all windows tightly closed, and a family of four dead of asphyxiation.

Officers estimated the temperature at 150 degrees in the home.

Gayle E. Hinton, 23, his wife Frances, 18, and their children Ava, 18 months, and Michael, 5 months, apparently died early Monday, investigators said.

Hinton's body was in the living room, sprawled near a tipped-over lamp, indicating he died in a desperate effort to reach and open a window. The other bodies were in or near their beds.

"CLOSE-UP OF A MAN WHO DID HIS CHRISTMAS SHOPPING EARLY"

Last year I did my Christmas shopping a little late (Dec. 29) but this year things are going to be different, because I'm not going to buy my gifts in the stores. I'm going to make all of them over at the wood-working shop of the Schwine Kitzenger Institute. I started yesterday and so far I've got three bird-houses, four shoe-shine boxes, a tie rack, four lacinated fingers and 12 splinters. It's strenuous work, but when my friends get a custom-made gift I know they'll really appreciate it no end. For instance, for my landlady, Mrs. Goonsgarten, I'm making a knotty pine breadboard with a likeness of Snooky Lanson carved on one side and Elvis Presley on the other. Isn't she lucky

Nixon Hinting Of New Aid For Austria

Veep Making Checkup On Problem Of Help For Hungry Refugees

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon held out the hope to Austrians today of additional U. S. aid in handling refugees from Soviet oppression.

Nixon arrived by plane for a three-day study of the refugee flood created by the Hungarian revolt. Austrians would like the United States to take additional refugees and provide financial help in caring for them.

Nixon said:

"We are fully determined to do our full share in meeting the needs which have grown out of the refugee problem."

He said he hoped to obtain estimates of the financial assistance Austria needs to deal with the problem, as well as accurate information "as to the number of refugees the United States should be prepared to receive."

Nixon said that his plane brought 1,600 pounds of insulin and checks totaling $450,000 from American volunteer agencies for the refugees.

Before leaving Washington, Nixon said he hoped to return Sunday or Monday with "firm recommendations" for handling U. S. aid to refugees. He will consider whether the United States can expand or revise its own activities in meeting the refugee problem.

Nixon met with President Eisenhower for final instructions. The vice president told a crowd of well-wishers at Washington's National Airport that he was carrying a message to Austria's Chancellor Julius Raab expressing Eisenhower's appreciation for "all that Austria has done."

OFFICIALS accompanying Nixon gave an indication of the problems he has in mind. Among them were John B. Hollister, head of the International Cooperation Administration, through which U. S. foreign aid is channeled, and William P. Rogers, deputy to Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell, who advises the President on the emergency admittance of refugees into the United States.

660 Expected To Be Killed On Christmas

CHICAGO (AP)—Traffic deaths will soar to a new record during the Christmas holiday period, the National Safety Council said today, unless motorists drive better than they ever did before.

The council estimated that 660 Americans may be killed on the streets and roads during the long holiday weekend—from 6 p. m. Friday to midnight Tuesday.

The highest toll for any holiday period was 609, compiled during last year's three-day Christmas celebration.

The council said the forecast increase is based upon an extra day of holiday observation and the fact that motor vehicle deaths were running ahead of last year's at latest count.

'Say Ahhh' Sticks Make Yule Trees

DAYTON (AP)—At Harman School in suburban Oakwood, Christmas trees come from tongue depressors.

Tongue depressors are the wooden blades doctors use when they tell you to "say ahhh."

At Harman School, 31 sixth graders have transformed 3,000 of the depressors into 57 miniature Christmas trees. Some have sold for as much as $2. The project is expected to clear about $40 for Hungarian relief.

Accused Youths Punished In Juvenile Court

Judge Cline Says Parents Must Pay Cost Of Damages

Hoping to scare North and boys, accused of breaking into and burglarizing buildings at Ted Lewis Park last week, was held in Juvenile Court yesterday.

The youths, ranging from 11 to 14-years-old, were severely reprimanded by Judge Guy Cline. They were placed on three years probation.

In addition to the warning, Judge Cline ordered the boys' parents to pay within 30 days for damages caused. Each parent will be required to pay one-third of the costs.

As further punishment, the judge declared that each boy would have to contact all park board members and apologize for the act of vandalism.

THE JUVENILES entered one of the park buildings by breaking a window.

Local police said they removed fixtures and connections. They also left other building property in shambles.

The youths were apprehended by Patrolman John Lockard.

Butler Seen Retained As Dem Chairman

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler appeared confident today his job is safe despite the November vote outcome and a disagreement with congressional leaders.

Butler issued a call for a meeting of the national committee in San Francisco on Feb. 15. Associates said he is confident he can dispose of any move for his ouster which might crop up then.

The chairman's friends said Butler had little direct connection with Adlai E. Stevenson's unsuccessful campaign for the Presidency. They said he was more concerned with the congressional campaigns in which the Democrats retained control.

'Satch' Steals Show At Royal Festival

LONDON (AP)—Louis Armstrong blew and blew for Hungarian relief Tuesday night, and then the 100-piece Royal Philharmonic Orchestra came on to play Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2.

The shouting, stamping audience—many in evening dress—at the Royal Festival Hall would not have it. They changed. "We want Satch, we want Satch."

So the orchestra filed off the platform and Satchmo came back with his hot trumpet for five encores, while the Duke of Kent, the Earl and Countess of Harwood, the Hon. Gerald Lascelles and hundreds of others applauded.

4 Men Held In Theft Of Valuable Maps

Oil Charts Taken From Firm Said To Be 'Worth Millions'

NEW YORK (AP)—The FBI has arrested four men in connection with the alleged theft of top-secret oil exploration maps said to be "worth millions."

The maps, federal authorities said, were stolen from the Pittsburgh offices of the Gulf Oil Co. by an employee they said wanted to sell them to pay off gambling debts to New York racketeers.

The arrests Tuesday followed a raid on the offices of the U. S. Tackless Corp. in the Bronx. FBI agents said they recovered many of the oil company's geological and seismographic maps at the offices of the carpet firm.

Among the four arrested on charges of transporting stolen property across state lines was Odie Richard Seagraves, 70, well-known Texas oil and natural gas promoter. Seagraves denied any connection with the alleged theft of the oil maps.

ALSO ARRESTED was Emanuel Lester, 32, already in jail awaiting sentence for trying to extort more than $500,000 from the late financial manipulator Serge Rubinstein. Federal officials said Seagraves was a former partner of Rubinstein in the early 1940s. The officials said the two Rubinstein connections were coincidental, as far as they knew.

The other seized were John Marvin Leva, 34, Orange, Tex., and Edward Lieberman, 30, the Bronx, listed as president of Tackless and identified as Lester's brother.

If convicted, each could get a 10-year prison term and a fine of $10,000.

DALY CITY, Calif. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. John M. Mowatt waited today for some word of their 17-year-old daughter, taken from home at gunpoint by her mentally disturbed husband.

A statewide hunt was on for Clo Ann Mowatt Wiegner, her 16-year-old husband, Mike, and another escaped mental patient, Jesse Eastman, 35, of Oakland.

Police said Wiegner and Eastman entered the Mowatt home Monday night, bound the girl's parents and dragged off the protesting girl.

Alcoholic Robin Becoming A Problem

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The country's most distinguished robin, George, has made his last migration. He has settled, permanently, in Pasadena.

When George migrated he didn't do it the hard way. He went by Buick, with his caretakers, Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Thomas at the wheel, and his bodyguard, Duke, a shepherd dog, standing watch.

George has been in the public print often. Originally, he was an Ohio robin. In 1952, when he was

Council Meeting Fails To Clarify Plans For Defense Of Zone Law

Municipal Circleville is getting ready to defend the city zoning law in court, but it is not at all clear as to how many lawyers will help do it—or how enthusiastic they will be.

This became obvious at last night's meeting of city council when the lawmakers renewed discussion on City Solicitor Kenneth Robbins' suggestion that the city hire Attorney William Ammer to defend the ordinance against a taxpayers suit. Robbins said he will "see that the city's interests are protected" in the meantime, and that he will do everything possible to assist Ammer—or anyone named by council for the task.

However, Robbins made it clear that he will only be "assisting" when hearings begin on the zoning law's legality. Three taxpayers have petitioned for an injunction against any future use of the law. Robbins let it be known months ago that he feels that purpose of the zoning law is being distorted at the expense of community progress. He feels the law should be changed when it is decided that any proposed change would be truly progressive.

CONSEQUENTLY, he suggested that council hire Ammer to take charge of the law's defense. Ammer is a top spokesman for those who insist that efforts to change the zoning law are, at least at this time, prompted by selfish interests.

Ammer was present at last night's meeting, but indicated that he has neither accepted or rejected any offer by council. A committee named by council to study Robbins' suggestion and recommend action apparently has had difficulty in reaching agreement.

However, Councilman Harold Clifton, speaking for the committee, ended last night's discussion by saying his group now feels that it will soon be ready to report.

Meanwhile, Robbins was prepared to ask Common Pleas Court for a delay in a hearing scheduled for December 22.

express the popular will "will all most inevitably take shape."

Nehru expressed hope that 10 Americans still held in communist China "will be released" but he said it would be "embarrassing" to talk about the problem of these Americans in any detail since the matter was one for another government that what he could say about it might not be true.

But in reference to Red China's Chou En-lai, who completed a trip to India just before Nehru came here, the Indian statesman said "obviously we have discussed this with him and will discuss it with him again."

Nehru has a date to have a second meeting with Chou in New Delhi on Dec. 30.

One of the first questions put to Nehru was whether he had given Eisenhower any message from the Chinese Communist premier.

"I did not bring any particular message from Chou En-lai," he said. "Naturally I had talks with him and I gave the President the gist of our talks in regard to matters of common interest."

Prizes Increased

Circleville Chamber of Commerce announced today that clock radios have been added to each of the two $25 prizes awaiting the winners of this Yuletide's home lighting contest. The Chamber, directing plans for the event, said the radios were donated by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company.

Two Juveniles Picked Up By Deputy Radcliff

Two juveniles who escaped from a detention home in Columbus and stole a car in that city were apprehended in Pickaway County last night by Deputy Sheriff Dwight Radcliff.

The youthful escapees were picked up in the vicinity of Route 104 about 14 miles northwest of Circleville.

Apprehension resulted when the boys' stolen car ran out of gas. A farmer in the area, noting that the stalled car had no license plates, became suspicious and called the sheriff's department.

One of the juveniles was apprehended shortly after deputy Radcliff arrived at the scene. The other, who had gone to a farm house for gas, spotted Radcliff and ran into a field. He was picked up about 2 1/2 hours later after a search through fields and ravines.

THE CHASE ended when Radcliff found the youth hiding in a junk pile. The boy, starting to run after being discovered, stopped immediately when the deputy fired a shot in the air.

Both juveniles were turned over to the Franklin County Sheriff's department. They were slated to be returned to the Columbus Juvenile Diagnostic Center.

Grudge Shooting In Indiana Leaves 1 Dead, 2 Hurt

ANGOLA, Ind. — A 40-year-old eccentric surrendered quietly in his cluttered home at Ray in North-east Indiana today after a grudge shooting that killed one neighbor and wounded two others.

Sheriff Harry Dirrim said the man, Merlin McNaughton, had taken 4-year-old Cathy Bradley with him after wounding her parents in their bed. The girl was found terrified but unharmed in McNaughton's home.

Another neighbor, Mervin Forrester, 48, a farmhand who had squabbled with McNaughton over an eviction, died a few minutes after he was found sprawled in the doorway of his home. There were rifle bullet wounds in his head and chest.

The girl's parents, Preston Bradley, 38, and his wife, Nancy, 36, were found wounded in their bed, Mrs. Bradley critically.

ONCE UPON A CHRISTMAS EVE

ESKI, Santa and the twins follow Professor Dee to the Toy Shop yard where he shows them an odd-looking object. "It's a Star Ship — a toy rocket space ship — and it really works!" says the Professor. Santa looks puzzled. "That's wonderful," he says. "But, look, how can I give a child a toy model of something that hasn't yet been invented! That wouldn't be fair to the grownups who have yet to build a real-for-sure one!" "Golly!" says Eski, "that's right!"

"I'VE AN IDEA!" Eski exclaims, "Santa, why can't you give it as a gift to some grownup?" "Wouldn't work," Professor Dee shakes his head. "The Star Ship's too small for that. Only children could get inside and ride in it!"

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Shortly after we married, my husband seemed very quiet and withdrawn; and when I asked the trouble he said he just wished we hadn't got married. Although he loves me, he just wishes we were still dating and that I was his girl friend.

Bruce is 34 and I am 26. This is our second marriage. He was divorced for 10 years, after 18 months' marriage, and I had been a widow, first married at 17. We courted for over a year, and Bruce was wonderfully considerate, and seemed to know what he wanted. I grew to love him very much and looked forward to a happy life.

We'd discussed having children and Bruce favored delay. Now I understand why; perhaps it can never be. We are both employed, and have good jobs. Bruce feels a bit insecure in his responsible position, fearing he might make a wrong decision that would get him fired. Could this account for his not wanting a wife and children?

He won't discuss things with my pastor, and probably wouldn't see may decide to talk to his mother, a marriage counselor either. He but, as he is her only child, I doubt that she could see her way clear to be helpful. My folks died when I was quite young.

As one solution I've thought of taking an overseas job for two years—something I had considered before marriage. We've discussed the idea and at first Bruce said it might work very well—in two years he might find himself more ready to be a husband and eventually a father—but then again, as he says, he may never change. Now he doubts that such a move would solve anything.

T. G.

DEAR T. G.: Man has to learn how to live in marriage—becoming more of a person and different from before. It is difficult to explain, but let's say that prior to marriage he breathes a certain kind of air: the atmosphere of singleness, in which he feels privately answerable to himself alone, primarily.

After marriage he must accommodate altogether to a denser atmosphere: the atmosphere of belonging, of owning and being owned by the partner. This is the element of unity—of being "one"

News In Brief—Israel Clings To Gaza Strip

JERUSALEM —Premier David Ben-Gurion told his parliament today Israel will not under any circumstances let Egypt reoccupy the Gaza Strip.

The narrow territory along the Mediterranean was seized by the Israelis during the invasion of Egypt's Sinai Peninsula in October. Israel has agreed to give up the Sinai to U. N. police troops but said it considers the Gaza Strip part of Palestine. Egypt occupied it for eight years after the Palestine war.

LONDON — Pravda accused the United States today of planning to take over the lion's share of British and French economic and political positions in the Middle East.

The Soviet Communist party newspaper said the United States "is evidently willing" to replace Britain as the chief power in the Baghdad Pact defensive alignment. The statement apparently was meant to substitute the United States for Britain in Arab eyes as the chief imperialist menace to the Arab world.

CAIRO — A well-informed Egyptian source said today President Gamal Abdel Nasser would meet with President Eisenhower in Washington if invited.

The informant was commenting on a proposal by U. S. Sen. Flanders (R-Vt) that Eisenhower invite Nasser to Washington as a move toward Mid-East peace.

BONN, Germany — For the first time, German housewives can cook an American turkey instead of the traditional goose for Christmas dinner this year. More than a million dollars worth of turkeys, chickens and ducks have been imported from the United States. Officials said it was the first time such imports have been made.

HAVANA, Cuba — About 50 persons police say were plotting an attack on an army barracks were arrested Tuesday in Camaguey, 320 miles southeast of Havana.

ISTANBUL — Russian shipping from the Black Sea ports through the strategic Turkish Straits this year nearly doubled the 1955 total.

Diplomats in Istanbul consider Soviet shipments of oil and military equipment to Egypt and Syria largely responsible.

OTTAWA — Canada announced today the sale of 225 Sabre jets to West Germany. With the necessary spare parts the deal amounts to over 75 million dollars, Trade Minister C. D. Howe said.

MOSCOW —Moscow television carried Tuesday night for the first time pictures of the revolution in Hungary. A Soviet commentary presented the Russian version of events in Hungary, but the films showed Hungarians burning Russian leaflets and tearing down the hammer and sickle insigna.

First Round Lost In Permit Debate

GREENFIELD — Judge William Radcliff, Circleville, sitting by assignment in Highland County common pleas court, Tuesday denied a motion filed by Paul Angel, owner of the 28 Club in Greenfield, for a temporary injunction restraining the village of Greenfield from enforcing its ordinance which prohibits the sale of 3.2 beer on Sunday.

The hearing was the first step in Angel's attempt to have the ordinance declared in conflict with Ohio laws and to have the court rule it invalid.

His suit, challenging the validity of the statute, will be scheduled for January.

Ex-U.S. Prof Shies Away From Western Reporters

MOSCOW — Prof. Orest Stephen Makar shied away from interviews with Western correspondents today about his defection from the United States. But his Russian-speaking wife confirmed they have abandoned their American citizenship to live in Russia.

The former St. Louis University professor, described by the newspaper Soviet Russia as "one of the world's foremost experts on aerial photography," had a frightened air when the Westerners encountered him in a hotel.

Makar, 47, furtively led the correspondents into a dark room of the hotel, in downtown Moscow, and then excused himself with word he would be gone five minutes.

A few minutes later his wife, Alexandria Sofia, who is expecting a child, entered to say her husband "is now busy" and suggested that the correspondents return later.

She confirmed the accuracy of Soviet news reports Tuesday that he had surrendered their American citizenship through a letter to the U. S. Embassy in Stockholm.

ASKED HOW many years Makar had lived in the United States she said: "You had better ask my husband those questions."

St. Louis records show Makar entered the United States in 1949 and that his work there included employment in 1952 at the Holloman Air Force Base, Alamogordo, N. M. Both he and his wife later became naturalized citizens at St. Louis.

Though Makar appeared reluctant to talk with Westerners, he seemed to have given an interview freely to Soviet newsmen.

Soviet Russia quoted the professor as saying he switched allegiance because the Soviet Union had a big head start over the United States in his specialty, the science of geodesy. It gave this account of the interview:

The Russians have made great progress in the geodesic field, Makar said, "while in the United States we were just starting."

'Flagrant Fraud'
In Poll Count Seen

YOUNGSTOWN —The Mahoning County election board reported Tuesday at the end of a two-day hearing it found "conclusive evidence of flagrant fraud" in the counting of the returns of the Nov. 6 election.

Brian Wade, board clerk, said the ballot boxes from three polling places would be taken to Cleveland for investigation by Joseph Tholl, election inspector for Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

The election board hearing was set after officials noted suspicious ballots during a recount of the prosecutor race. The recount was asked for by Municipal Judge Frank Franko, who placed third in the prosecutor contest in both the original count and the second.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington won't see anything like Charlie Campbell in a long time. There couldn't be more than one of him in a generation. He's dead now at 52.

Most of the British, I'm sure, never heard of him. But in his way he did as much as any ambassador to create good will for the British in this country.

He was in charge of the British information office in Washington since 1942. His job was to make Britain look as good as possible while providing newsmen with information they needed about Britain.

He was born in England, but he grew up in America he went to school in this country, and for 18 years before he came to Washington he was a newspaperman on the New Orleans Item-Tribune.

That's where I met him 29 years ago when I went to work on the same paper in 1927. In all those years I was never quite sure of his full name. He always put an "Argyle" or "MacDougal" or something into it.

When I heard Tuesday that he had died I telephoned his office and said I wanted his full name. The girl who answered said: "I'm afraid Charlie's name was never quite so full as he made it out to be. It was Charles Henry Campbell."

I said: "I remember other names mixed up in it. Like Argyle." The girl said: "I do too."

Then she added: "He had two daughters and two sons. Maybe the sons' names will help: the first he named Charles Argyle Patrick Stuart Hall Howard Campbell; the other he named Ivan Phillip Nelegan Hilaire Viollette Campbell."

"Charlie was forever borrowing his son's names, using all of them or parts of them, interchangeably, in his own, whenever it pleased him to do so and it pleased him often."

They must have been names he wished somebody had given him.

Charlie collected stories like a landlord going after the rent. Then he told them. He liked telling them. He liked telling them, I think, because it gave him a chance to act them out.

He was an actor, and a good one, in a kind of pixy way.

All the years he lived down South he looked and acted and talked like any American. If he hadn't told people in those days he was British, no one could have suspected it.

But from the moment he came to work for his government in Washington he became more British than most Britons. He grew a walrus mustache—he had only a little one down South—and talked with a British accent so thick it sounded like a burlesque.

The hail-fellow, story-telling side of Charlie broke down any barriers which might have existed between him and the American newsmen acted and reacted and what they wanted.

What they wanted, basically, was not his stories but information on Britain when they needed it. When a newsmen called Campbell at his office, Charlie was

Suspended Term Given In 3 Deaths

NEW PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A judge convicted John A. Webber, 26, of Canton, of manslaughter Tuesday and gave him a suspended sentence of six months, plus a fine of $500 and costs.

Common Pleas Judge Cletus A. Fisher returned the verdict, as the defendant had waived a jury trial.

Last May 20 three persons died in an accident involving Webber's car, on Ohio 21 near Newcomers-town. The state highway patrol reported that his car hit the rear of another car driven by Cecil Jones Jr., 25, of Cleveland, knocking Jones' car into a river. Jones' wife, their son Roy, six months, and a guest, Eskew Agnor of Dixie, W. Va., were drowned when they were unable to escape from the submerged car.

At 100, She Asks Only For 'Peace'

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—Mrs. Hannah Brennan, of nearby Dunmore, turned 100 yesterday, with the wish for only one Christmas gift—world peace. Still active and keenly responsive to the news of the day, Mrs. Brennan, a widow since 1901, said: "I have every earthly thing I need. But world peace would be wonderful, the best possible Christmas present."

either able to give him an answer right away or he got it for him in a hurry. He created good will for Britain, not by blowing horns, but by creating an air of jolly good-fellowship and reliability.

At the first international conference during the war—in 1943—the American government posted soldiers with bayonets at all doors to keep out newsmen. But Charlie brought the British delegation out to see the newsmen. Britain got the best of that story for days because the British were the only ones the newsmen could find to talk to.

A Christmas Classic

(Along with dolls, drums, building blocks, wheeled toys, weapon replicas and games, books are the most popular of Christmas gifts from generation to generation. Clark Kinnaird, author, editor, historian and literary critic, tells the story of classic Christmas books in a series written especially for Central Press Association and this newspaper.)

IT is said that there lived in Boston once upon a time, a Mrs. Isaac Goose. She, when her husband died, went to live with her youngest daughter, Elizabeth, and son-in-law, Thomas Fleet, a printer.

Grandma Goose, so the story goes, amused the Fleet children by chanting jingles, some of which she had heard and some of which she had improvised herself. Eventually, her son-in-law was inspired to publish, in 1715, a booklet entitled, Songs for the Nursery; or, Mother Goose's Melodies for Children. This and subsequent editions of Mother Goose's Melodies issued by other printers in Colonial America amassed a readership second only to that of The New-England Primer.

Boston and this country could claim one of the world's most enduringly popular authors if Thomas Fleet's mother-in-law had been the real "Mother Goose." She wasn't. His book was a reprint of rhymes long known in the Old World.

The term "Mother Goose" goes back to France and England before 1715. The name is associated, too, with the most popular of all fairy tales—Cinderella, The Sleeping Beauty, Little Red Riding Hood, Puss in Boots, Bluebeard and Hop-O-My-Thumb.

Charles Perrault, a Frenchman, is generally credited with being the first to put these into a book. He was not their author. He recorded folk-tales handed down an unknown number of generations. His collection of them published in Paris in 1696 bore no author's name. A frontispiece showed three children grouped around an old wife. A caption says, "Contes de la mere L'Oye," or tales told by Mother Goose.

Finding a tale or verse in a children's book is no reason for assuming it was written originally for children. Some of the "Mother Goose" rhymes had their inception as political satires for adults in days when it was deadly dangerous to criticize a king or prime minister in plain words.

A page of a Mother Goose collection published in 1785 by Isaiah Thomas, famous New England printer.

Humpty Dumpty, were understood as referring to actual persons. The contents of the earliest children's book, Aesop's Fables, printed by Caxton in 1484, were told in ancient Greece for the instruction and entertainment of grownups.

Similarly, the stories written down by Perrault originated as amusement for adults, not for children. That is why they have sophisticated plots or characters which have been considered immoral and objectionable for children's stories at various times. The fairy tales told by Hans Christian Andersen and the Brothers Grimm (which will be discussed here later) have been less criticized.

The Arabian Nights, Robinson Crusoe, Gulliver's Travels are other forerunners of today's fantasy-fiction and science-fiction which were written for adults but firmly taken over by children, who live more in imagination than reality. As one literary historian pointed out, "The novel-reading habit reached the nursery almost before grown-ups had acquired it."

Council Meeting Relatively Quiet

Except for criticism of a "sloppy" budget and a discussion on plans to defend the city's zoning law in a court contest, the municipal lawmakers last night confined their talk to relatively minor business. There were no major arguments.

Jibes at the way the budget had been prepared and talk about defending the zoning law both came after approval had been given to four pieces of new legislation. The budget appropriation ordinance was passed. (See separate stories)

Councilman George Crites was absent.

At the opening of the session, council heard reading of a recommendation from the city board of health, urging a pay increase for Mae M. Groome, city health nurse. Council was told she now receives $187 a month. There was no apparent opposition to the pay raise proposal, which calls for $25 a month additional.

COUNCIL then became entangled when it moved to grant the request of residents along Collins Court and Dartmouth Drive. Council was told that, in both cases, residents either do not want new street lights offered to their neighborhood or else want the lights in another location.

At a previous meeting, the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company revealed the results of a street light master plan for the city's new North Annex. However, legislation based on the company's plan apparently included the Collins Court and Dartmouth Drive lights—and neither section is part of the annexed area.

It was not immediately clear how the legislation was passed with this revision — apparently a last-minute change — when the measure was intended as a master plan for street lights in the North Annex. A copy of the ordinance was not on hand last night for council's rechecking.

Residents of Collins Court wrote Council that they do not want additional lights on Collins Court itself, but do ask for a light at the Court Street intersection. Dartmouth Drive residents, council was told, do not want a light offered to that locality in the latest planning.

Not quite sure as to how to work its way out of the parliamentary square-dance, the lawmakers for a time tried to hitch the Collins Court and Dartmouth Drive wishes to a resolution that authorizes a new light at S. Pickaway St. and Fourth Ave. The resolution happened to be on hand at last night's meeting to provide lighting for a newly improved stretch of S. Pickaway St.

The effort, however, only seemed to be making the picture more complicated, so council adopted the S. Pickaway St. resolution and delayed action on the Collins Court and Dartmouth Drive requests—at least until the master plan on North Annex street lighting can be double-checked. Meanwhile, the lawmakers indicated they are willing to change the Collins Court and Dartmouth Drive lights to suit residents of the two neighborhoods.

COUNCIL next adopted a resolution that authorized a transfer to replenish the street repair fund as part of the financing of work done

Millionaire Lay Preacher Irked By Beer Tie To Name

PEORIA, Ill. (U-P) — R. G. LeTourneau, multimillionaire industrialist, wants his name taken out of a brand name because, he said, beer and bathing beauties don't mix with his religious tenets.

The 66-year-old magnate who once said "God is chairman of my board of directors" wants his surname stricken from earth-moving equipment made by LeTourneau-Westinghouse Co. Company officials declined comment at the request.

Behind the controversy was a publicity stunt used by the Pabst Brewing Co. in Peoria last summer to introduce a new type beer.

A huge LeTourneau-Westinghouse machine rolled through the streets. In its open tank a man swam in a mixture of the new beer and water. Scantly clad models adorned the rim of the portable pool.

LeTourneau, who in 1953 sold his Peoria plant to Westinghouse Air Brake Co., expressed his indignation over the stunt in an open letter to the company published in the Christmas edition of "Now," a monthly publication of LeTourneau Tech in Longview, Tex.

"I am very much against liquor," the letter said. "I have consistently refused liquor advertisements at considerable loss of revenue on the two radio stations which I control."

"I would not have thought you (LeTourneau - Westinghouse) would have allowed your product to be advertised in this manner—it certainly will affect your witness for Christ."

Le Tourneau sent a copy of the letter to Merl Yontz, president of LeTourneau - Westinghouse, suggesting that LeTourneau be dropped from the company name. Yontz would not comment on the suggestion but said the Westinghouse purchase of the plant included the LeTourneau name with no strings attached.

Brownell To Stay On Ike's 'Team'

WASHINGTON (U-P) — Atty. Gen. Brownell says President Eisenhower has asked him to continue in his present Cabinet post for another four years, and that he has agreed to do so.

The attorney general supplied the information in response to an inquiry. It was understood at the time of the President's re-election in November that Brownell would continue in his present office.

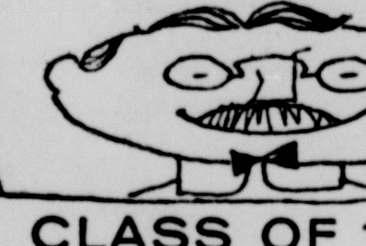

Grain Storage Tax Rule Voided

WASHINGTON C. H. (U-P)—Some 600 Fayette County grain producers apparently will not have to pay personal property tax on grain they stored under Commodity Credit Corp. rules.

Common Pleas Judge John P. Case Tuesday ruled the tax "invalid, erroneous, unlawful and unreasonable." He granted a permanent injunction against its collection by the county auditor and treasurer. Previously, he granted a temporary injunction.

Ohio Supreme Court Steps Up Activity

Tribunal Planning To Clear Its Docket By End Of Month

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's Supreme Court put on a burst of speed today in preparation for a new term starting Jan. 8.

Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant said decisions in all cases handled by present members of the court will be announced this month.

He explained that the action will clear the decks for a new member, former Gov. Thomas J. Herbert of Cleveland.

Herbert, elected last Nov. 6, will be sworn at 2 p. m. Jan. 2 for a six-year term.

The ceremonies will be held in the court's reception room where two other members of the tribunal were sworn last week for new terms.

They were Weygant, who will start an unprecedented fifth six-year term when the court convenes, and Judge John M. Matlack of Columbus, now completing the unexpired term of his late father, Judge Edward S. Matthias, who served on the high court for 39 years.

Herbert, who also served as an Ohio attorney general, will leave his Washington post as chairman of the Subversive Activities Control Board to become a judge.

He will succeed Judge William J. Hart of Alliance who, at the age of 89, did not seek re-election.

About 125 cases and motions were pending before the high court this month, Clerk Elliot E. Welch of Columbus reported. He said announced decisions would dispose of about a third of that total.

One of the awaited decisions deals with the question of whether state highway funds can be used to plan a 4½ million dollar parking garage under the Statehouse grounds. A Cincinnati parking lot operator, acting as a taxpayer, contended that the state constitution bans use of about $64,000 to plan the project authorized by the Legislature.

"The court docket is current," Chief Justice Weygant reported. Court attaches estimated that cases to be considered by the court probably would be decided within three months after the new term starts.

The term ends Dec. 31 but hearings were concluded last week.

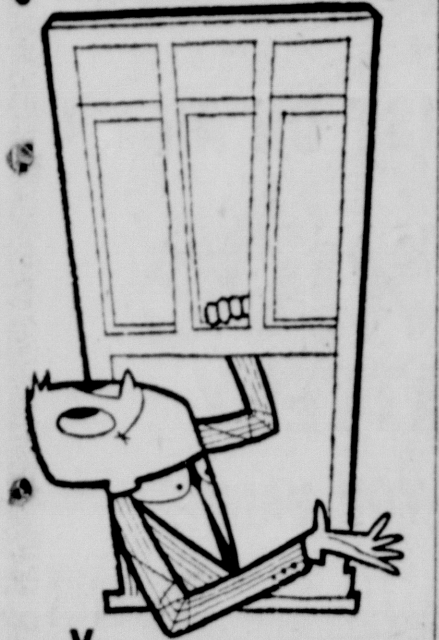

Other members of the court, every human problem in litigation, are Judges Kingsley A. Taft of Cleveland, James F. Bell of London, Charles B. Zimmerman of Springfield and James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati.

Meet The New State 'Family'

Governor 'Billy The Kid' Isn't A Kid Now; He's 40

Editor's Note: This is the second of five articles sketching the people and problems involved as the Republican party takes over sole control of Ohio's state government next month for the first time in 28 years.

By ART PARKS
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—'Billy the Kid' isn't a kid anymore. He's "Bill" O'Neill now. He's 40 (almost 41) and the governor-elect of the state of Ohio.

C. William O'Neill is a "big man" now. He has been growing in political stature ever since he first was a candidate for the Ohio House of Representatives when he was barely old enough to vote (22). In physical stature he stopped growing a little too soon. By stretching he can make 5-feet-4½.

But he has a winning grin, a lot of "moxie"—political and administrative—and a way of making you forget he's no giant.

C. William O'Neill will become Ohio's governor Jan. 14. The "C." stands for nothing—his birth certificate dated Feb. 14, 1916, proves it. The "why" of the initial "C." is a minor mystery even to C. William himself.

It would be difficult to find a more marked set of contrasts than the change from five-term Democrat Gov. Frank J. Lausche to Republican Bill O'Neill.

Aside from physical stature, national origin, politics and such, the men themselves present a contrast: Lausche is by way of being a mystic—O'Neill is a practical as ham and eggs.

The men have one thing in common—and that probably results from the pressure on both for public appearances. In the eyes of intellectuals, each has a "corny" streak—a tendency toward wordiness without particular significance and an undue reliance upon the eternal verities.

Newsman probably will find O'Neill difficult to "cover." He doesn't have the world's sharpest news sense. Besides, he sometimes gets so wrapped up in what he is doing that he doesn't recognize the fact that other citizens of Ohio likely would find his activities most interesting — news, in fact.

By contrast, outgoing Gov. Lausche has a flair for news, seemingly an instinct for dropping the unexpected word where it will do the most good.

O'Neill does not have a naturally warm personality. He is a taskmaster, but has won an unexpectedly fierce loyalty among his staff members.

O'Neill never has lost an election. He served six consecutive terms in the Ohio House beginning with his election in 1938. He became majority whip in 1943 and speaker in 1947. During his last term in 1949-50 he was minority leader in a Democratic house. In 1950 he stepped into the office of attorney general and won re-election twice with no apparent struggle.

He didn't get his law degree until after he started to serve in the House and he took some time out for Army service during World War II. When he became attorney general in 1951 at the age of 34, he was the youngest chief legal officer in Ohio history.

By the time O'Neill was ready to try for the governorship this year, he was understandably just a little weary of all the "youngest" records. And most of all he was tired of "Billy."

So the new governor of nine million Ohioans is "just plain Bill."

Next: Nelsonville's Stan Mechem, "the man" of the Ohio Senate.

Yule Cards Made By Boy At Age 3

He says in recent years his son has found religious themes most appealing.

Pole Seeking U.S. Aid Revealed To Be Needy Priest

ELYRIA, Ohio (AP)—A Pole who wrote to officials of several American cities and asked them help him get contributions for a new automobile forgot to mention a couple of pertinent factors:

He's a priest and needs a car to visit his scattered parishioners in and around Swiecie, Poland.

In his letters, the Rev. Father Jan Zakrsewski, 35, asked that any contributions be sent to his brother, Bernard, 36, an Elyria tool designer.

Then, said the letters, the brother in Elyria "will pay the total amount in a post office and I'll get a snug motor car in my country and my dream will come true."

The last time the brother here heard of him, Father Zakrsewski was riding around on a bicycle and hoped to buy a motorcycle.

Bernard said he believed lack of an understanding of the English language was responsible for the fact his brother failed to mention his calling in the letters.

MORE WOMEN EMPLOYED

BY 1975, THE U. S. Bureau of the Census estimates, one-third of the nation's "manpower" will be "womanpower." That's right, a survey by the bureau finds the lady worker is becoming a permanent fixture on the domestic industrial scene, and a new social pattern is emerging which uses her as the focal point.

In addition to women becoming a more dominant force in the working population, the age groups of lady workers are changing. No longer is the career girl dominant in their ranks. Today, the so-called grandmother set, composed of married, divorced or widowed women in the 35-64 age bracket, are in the majority.

Many factors are involved in the sudden rise to power of the grandmother in modern industry. A scarcity of young workers due to a low birth rate 20 years ago, high wages and more leisure time are the causes given much of the credit. Perhaps previous experience with a supplemental paycheck had something to do with it too, for many of these older workers were defense workers during World War II who, after the war, returned to their roles as homemakers and continued to raise their children.

Now with the young ones grown and away at school or starting their own families, "grandma" again finds time for increasing the family income.

If the present trends continue, it is estimated by the Census Bureau that the next two decades will find the older ladies comprising more than half of all female employees. It would appear that older employees in general, and ladies in particular, are no longer content to rely upon savings, pensions or social security as the sole means of livelihood.

Increasing numbers of older persons in the American work force also indicates the stigma once attached to the hiring of older employees has finally been overcome. Employers have learned that dependability, efficiency and conscientiousness are standard traits of the older worker.

PAYING OFF

RUNNING counter to the trend, which is a decline in imports by Europe and parts of Asia because of higher costs caused by the blocking of the Suez Canal, U. S. exports of wheat have reached their highest peacetime volume.

Such commitments as 230,000 tons to Turkey, 350,000 tons to Germany and a tremendous total of smaller orders suggest that the European countries are engaging in heavy stockpiling. International tensions are reflected. Brazil will also take 1.8 million tons in three years.

This transfer of great quantities of this country's horated wheat surplus, as well as other surpluses, to Europe and Asia presents a brighter picture for agriculture. This year there's an estimated $400 million gain in net farm income over 1955. Agriculturalists predict there will be a similar or larger gain next year. Some experts predict that 1957 will be sufficiently higher to offset the soil bank's cut in output. Soil bank cash received by the farmer would thus be velvet.

Farm problems will not vanish overnight. Farm prices have some distance to cover before they overtake farm costs. But the trend is in the right direction. Those who opposed renewal of high rigid parity and its encouragement to store more surpluses have the gratification of knowing that their stand is paying off.

WHO'S THE SPARK PLUG?

PERSONS attending United Nations sessions in New York declare the atmosphere of the UN halls is charged—literally.

It seems the carpets are so thick and the air so dry (because of a good air-conditioning system) that static electricity jolts the delegates every time they go through a door which is made of metal and glass. Soviet Foreign Minister Shepilov produced an audible "pop" when he left the Assembly meeting the other day.

The one hope may be that the UN can harness some of this electricity and transform it from "static" into "power."

THE HEART, POWERFUL GADGET

By HAL BOYLE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Odd facts a columnist might never learn if he didn't open his mail:

That your heart, if it exerted all at once the force it used in a lifetime, could lift the mightiest battleship 14 feet out of water.

That a woman's heart weighs slightly more than half a pound, and a man's heart slightly less than three quarters of a pound.

That your heart usually has the same shape as your body—slim if you're slim, chunky if you're short and broad.

That the average human heart beats nearly three billion times in 70 years—and every day pushes from 5 to 10 tons of blood

These Days

George E. Sokolsky's

Americans are generous and they give freely to good causes. This is particularly true during the Christmas season. Therefore, it is surprising that private donations to Hungarian relief are not what they were expected to be. We love fighters for liberty but we are burdened by the high cost of living and the brutality of taxes.

The real reason for delayed action, however, is that there are too many organizations in the field and too much confusion. If we are to give to the Hungarians we want to be sure that they and nobody else get whatever it is that we give.

The American Red Cross would normally be the right organization to take hold, but the American Red Cross is in a contractual relationship with the International Red Cross which operates out of Switzerland.

While it is true that the Hungarian Communists will not permit American relief to come into Hungary under the American flag, it is equally true that Americans do not want any of their contributions to fall into the hands of the Hungarian Red Cross, which is a Communist-controlled organization, as all organizations are in Soviet countries. Unfortunately for the people of any Communist country, the government owns everything in the country, including the organizations of the people. That is exactly what the heroic Hungarians are fighting against.

The danger is that American relief would, under such circumstances, be used for political purposes by Hungarian Communists. The Swiss who go in as inspectors would be helpless, except that they could a year or two from now publish a report saying how bad the Hungarian Communists are, something that has been demonstrated for all the world to see. Nobody or hardly anybody would pay the slightest attention to their report.

Of course, much work can be done in Austria among the refugees and in Vienna, there is no reason why American relief should not fly the American flag. But this is only a part of the relief problem.

Food, medicines and clothes must be sent into Hungary for the people there who have heroically fought tanks with their fists and have not lost the battle. It may be possible to get such items into Hungary through the International Red Cross with some small supervision and if the gamble is worth anything, it is worth taking in the hope that some others than Communist Party members will benefit, but it is a long chance because Communists in action are brutal partisans even using food for children to achieve their wicked ends.

Meanwhile, the people inside Hungary feel deserted and friendless and are fighting for their soil until all are killed which Butcher Zhukov is as capable of doing as Stalin had millions killed in the Ukraine. Zhukov has been advertised in this country as an approximate gentleman because he knew Eisenhower in World War II but there is nothing in the record to establish his gentility.

Herbert Hoover managed relief expeditions during and after World War I and always under the American flag. Lenin admitted the American Relief Administration into Russia to perform exactly such services as need now to be done in Hungary.

CASSON drove to the West End Central Police Station and found Strutt out. He waited impatiently, his mind unable to ignore the complicated equation of pain that was circling inside it. On the one side were Perry's past, and on the other were his future, victims. Which must he, Casson Duker, jettison to save the other? Strutt looked tired when he came in.

"Well?" he asked.

"We know as much as she does," Casson replied. Despite his previous resolve to tell Strutt all that Mrs. Gordonstoun had told him, he could not bring himself to do it. The unsolved computation still wove in his head.

"I told her what we knew. She confirmed it. She identified the man."

"What name did he use?"

"She wouldn't talk," Casson replied.

Strutt stared at him. Then he looked away.

"Blast them," he said viciously. "They never talk. They think of their own precious skins."

There was a crash as the metal ashtray on Strutt's desk clattered on the opposite wall.

"Forget it, Cass," said Strutt. "I'm vexed. I'm irritated. I'm homicidal. I want to beat that little rat's head until he whimpers."

"Fine," said Casson. "But take it easy."

"You understand, Casson, that this is a case for full investigation. That means for a prosecution—if we can get one?"

"You can't. Not on present evidence. There isn't any. None of the victims will talk."

"Subpoena them. Make them talk."

"They'll deny everything."

"Yellow-bellied..." Strutt began.

"I'm worried about the future victims. We must give them a chance. We must stop Perry from re-becoming Bagot or Martin."

"How? I can't arrest him. You know that."

"Frighten him off. Let him know that we are after him, that we'll get him in the end if he goes on playing his pretty little tricks. Make him retire."

Strutt made a noise like a laugh. It was without humor.

"No criminal retires," he observed. "Warn him off and one fine day he'll disappear and go."

Safeguard That Tree

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

A SMALL Christmas tree can be just as beautiful as a large one. And what's more important, it is often less hazardous.

Keep this in mind when shopping for your tree this year.

Make sure also that the tree you buy is one which is freshly cut and has been stored outside. Keep it outside until you are ready to put it up. Best time to do this is Christmas Eve, certainly not more than a few days before Christmas.

Fire Hazard

The longer a tree remains in the house, the quicker it will dry out. And a dried-out tree presents a serious fire hazard. It takes less than 60 seconds for the average tree to be entirely consumed by fire.

The Chicago Fire Department suggests that when preparing the tree for its stand you should saw off the butt end at an angle. About one-inch above the butt, cut some vertical grooves into the tree trunk.

Add Water

Then place the tree in a secure holder that contains water. Every day add enough water to keep it above the level of the grooves. This helps to keep the tree green and to retain its needles. It also slows up the drying-out process, thus reducing the possibility of burning.

The department also recommends flame-proofing Christmas costumes and paper or cloth decorations. This is easy to do. Just dip them in one of the two following solutions, wring them dry by hand and allow them to dry.

Flame-Proof Solution

To make a flame-proof solution, mix three quarts of warm water with seven ounces of boric acid and three ounces of boric acid. Or you can mix two pounds of ammonium phosphate with one gallon of water.

And just to be on the safe side, keep handy a pail of sand and either a water-type fire extinguisher or a bucket of water.

I hope you won't need them, but it's always better to be prepared.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

W. W.: My 20-year-old son has a very high-pitched voice. This began at the age of 14. What can be causing this?

Answer: Some disorder of the vocal cords or nervous system may be at fault. A thorough physical examination will probably reveal the exact cause.

Mrs. Wilbur Dyer Gives Talk At USD 1812 Meet

Mrs. Wilbur C. Dyer, Columbus, State President of the Ohio Society, United States Daughters of 1812, was guest speaker, when the Major John Boggs Chapter held its December meeting in the home of Mrs. Donald H. Watt of 540 N. Court St.

Mrs. Dyer based her talk on the National Society's two new projects—The Star Spangled Banner Flag House, in Baltimore, Md., and Restoration of the Frigate Constellation. In 1789 George Washington felt we should have a Navy and order was given to build 4 battleships, one of which was the Constellation. Daughters of 1812 are asked to contribute to its rehabilitation program and it is anchored in Baltimore Harbor for public viewing. Miss Elizabeth Imbell, Chillicothe, will serve as chapter chairman.

Mementoes of the War of 1812 are kept in Star Spangled Banner Flag House, where the Flag of the United States is permitted to be flown 24 hours a day. This project will be maintained by the chapters contribution from each state. Mrs. C. E. Wright will serve as chapter chairman.

"The Flag Goes By" was published in The Youth's Companion—Jan. 13, 1898. Its appearance in print was delayed several months by a rejection letter from St. Nicholas Magazine which its editors lived long enough to regret.

It is interesting to note that the first anthology in which the verses were included was Edmund Clarence Stedman's Anthology of American Verse. It's impossible to list the many anthologies which since have included it, as Harry Holcomb Bennett was always ready and generous to permit its use and wide circulation. Rear Admiral Luce included it in his Anthology of Patriotic Verse. It was translated into French and used in presentation of flags to American regiments going to the front in France during First World War. A copy of the poem is on exhibit at the Valley Forge Museum of American History.

Tigers Gain Win Over Groveport

Locals Collect 66-47 Decision For 2nd Cage Victory Of Season

Circleville's Tiger cage squad registered its second win in a row Tuesday night by thumping Groveport in a convincing manner, 66 to 47. The contest was played on the local hardwood.

Last night's win evens the Tigers' season record at two wins and two losses. The other victory was a league win over Washington C. H. last Friday.

The Circleville basketballers made a clean sweep last night as coach Dick Boyd's reservists recorded their first win of the season by trouncing the visiting junior cagers, 61 to 48.

The Tiger varsity men displayed their best offensive showing so far this year, connecting on 50 per cent of their shots from the field. They made good on 25 of 50 attempts.

BOB FRASER, zeroing in on the basket with his favorite overhand jump shot, dropped in 20 points to take scoring honors for the Tigers. Eight of his 10 baskets were of the jump-shot variety.

Tom Krinn also displayed some sharp-shooting for the locals as he racked up 15 points on six goals and three free throws.

Bill Johnson, high-scoring forward, was held to three points. However, the leading CHS point maker suffered a sprained ankle about mid-way through the second half and was forced to leave the game.

In addition to playing heads-up defensive ball under both bank-borders, big Jon Pacher and Mike Hosler managed to contribute eight points each for the Tiger cause.

John Davis and Nelson Kelley, number one CHS replacements, scored five and three points respectively.

Allen Miller of Groveport wrapped up scoring laurels for the evening, swishing the nets for 24 tallies. McClure assisted with 10 markers.

THE TIGERS jumped off to a 13 to 11 first quarter advantage and increased the margin to 36-22 at intermission.

Shortly after the second period got underway, the visitors knotted the score at 13-13. The deadlock was short-lived, however, as Fraser connected on a jump shot and Pacher sank a bucket and a foul shot. From that point on the Tigers steadily increased their margin.

Circleville's single best point spree came late in the second period when they tallied seven consecutive counters while holding Groveport scoreless.

Again the Tigers showed improved accuracy at the foul line, making good on 16 charity throws. The Groveport cagemen counted 19.

Coach Red Courtney's basketballers also displayed a tough zone defense which the losers found difficult to penetrate.

Coach Boyd's Kittens found their winning stride as they posted a victory margin that was almost equal to that of the CHS varsity.

HOLDING a narrow 29 to 23 halftime lead, the Kittens reservists opened up in the final two stanzas to win going away.

Asa Elsea was the big scoring gun for the winners with six goals and two free throws, good for 14 points. Ted Wellington chipped in with 10.

The Groveport junior varsity point-making effort was led by Elshlager and Goble with 10 each.

The Tigers next cage tilt is scheduled for Friday night when they meet Greenfield in a league battle. The contest will be played here.

Texas OKs Royal As Grid Coach

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The University of Texas today turned its sagging football fortunes over to Darrell Royal, a young coach. It gave him five years to rebuild.

Royal, 32, who coached at the University of Washington the past season, was picked as Texas' twenty-fifth head coach in 63 years of football at a meeting of the board of regents Tuesday.

Grid Giants Keep Eye On Big Bear End

NEW YORK (AP)—Already singled by the hair-raising pass grabbing of end Harlon Hill, the New York Giants today turned their attention toward Hill, in particular, and the Chicago Bears, in general, as they planned strategy for the National Football League championship playoff Dec. 30.

"We'll try to double up on him as much as we can," said Jim Lee Howell, coach of the Eastern Conference champs. "But we can not go overboard on him because the Bears have such good runners. That's what makes it so hard to set up a defense."

In the only regular season meeting between the teams, in Yankee Stadium Nov. 25, Hill came up with two spectacular touchdown catches in the final quarter to enable the Bears to pull out a 17-17 deadlock.

"I don't know for sure who's going to defend against Hill," said Howell, "he's all over—at end, in the backfield—just all over. If I tried to have specific men cover him, they'd be running into each other. The best I can hope for is to do it by assigning areas, to double him on either side."

Bill Russell Set For Pro Career

BOSTON (AP)—Bill Russell, All America from the University of San Francisco and Olympic team star, was scheduled to sign a professional contract today with the Boston Celtics, leaders in the National Basketball Assn.

The 6-10 offensive and defensive ace is the "big man" sought by the Celtics since 1946.

Russell, who rejected a $30,000 a year offer from the Harlem Globetrotters, reportedly agreed to sign with the Celtics for a $10,000 bonus and $15,000 annually.

Fancy Whisky Bottles Bring New Headaches

Distillers Studying Decanter Splurge As Competition Grows

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK — All that fancied-up glassware in the ads and in the shop window can be traced straight to costly competition in one of the most competitive of all businesses. And some companies wish they'd never started it.

It stems from this: Americans annually give each other some 100 million bottles of liquor—most of it around this time of year. Since that's no small market, distillers go after those sales vigorously to the delight of the glass, carton and wrapping paper industries.

This year the splurge on decanters and fancy trappings is at a new height. They're fancier, more imaginative, costlier. And for the first time imported whisky is getting in the act.

Some in the industry go in for it reluctantly, holding that it costs them too much for the return they get. But they're afraid to stop the practice unless their rivals do, too.

So they hire noted industrial designers—who don't work for peanuts, nor for a little of the product, either—to turn out decanters looking like anything from old fashioned syrup containers to a ship's lantern—bottles that play tunes, bottle tops that are cigarette lighters or double for candlesticks—cases that can be used as end tables, their drawers filled with bottles.

Others concentrate on cartons with holiday motifs, some with a needlepoint effect on monk's cloth background.

The trouble is that, expensive as all this is, most distillers are convinced that the fancy decanter will lure the gift shopper away from the plain bottle on the shelf. It may make little difference to the man buying for himself, as he does most of the year, but when he is selecting a present he feels the fancy glassware makes it look more valuable.

One distiller, with the dealers' problems in mind, foregoes the fancy glass and puts gift wrapping around the bottle at the distillery. They bear no advertising and look as if done at home—only neater. If the dealer has some left over after new years, he just removes the wrapper and

Governor's Group To Aid Refugees

COLUMBUS — Ohio expanded its facilities for handling incoming Hungarian refugees Tuesday with the creation of a special governor's committee on refugee relief.

The special committee, designed to coordinate activity in providing jobs and homes for Hungarian refugees, was approved at a meeting attended by Gov. Frank J. Lausche, representatives of church, civic and state organizations, and mayors from 11 Ohio cities—Cleveland, Dayton, Toledo, Columbus, Cincinnati, Elyria, Lorain, Youngstown, Akron, Canton and Martins Ferry.

puts them back on the shelf—no telltale reflection on his selling prowess.

For the first time a Canadian whisky is going in for decanters. The Scots are pushing sales here this year, mindful of the United Kingdom's urge for more American dollars to tide over the Suez Canal crisis. And the Irish Board of Trade is pushing both production and export of Irish whisky, with its eyes on the same dollar.

Wilt The Stilt Is Held To 23 Meager Points

Kansas Clips California But Big Boy Failing To Get Heavy Tally

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What's happening to Wilt the Stilt? Why, at this rate, the towering sophomore phenom of the top-rated Kansas Jayhawks is liable to become just another of the flock of college basketball players who score a couple dozen points a game and manage to get their names in the paper now and then. Chamberlain, who stands seven feet and weighs 215 without his press clippings, was "held" to a meager 23 points Tuesday night as the Jayhawks made it five in a row, 66-56 over California.

Quite a comedown for the big fellow who broke into varsity competition with a 52-point spurge but hasn't been able to go over 39 since.

With Wilt's average at 36 a game, Kansas might even be expected to lose a game in the three years Chamberlain will be around. It almost happened Tuesday night, Cal, using a collapsing defense that sometimes put three or four men on the Kansas ace, held Chamberlain to three field goals and a total of only 9 points while taking a 33-25 halftime lead. It wasn't until midway of the second half that the Jayhawks got ahead and then Wilt, leading the way with his scoring and rebounding, pushed them on to No. 5.

Missouri, another West Coast visitor, thrashed Oregon State 71-41 with Lionel Smith scoring 21.

Elsewhere Tuesday night, Duke and St. Louis — the early season "giant killers" — were at it again. Duke with a last-minute drive that nipped seventh-rated Kentucky, 85-84, and St. Louis with a romping 93-77 decision over Louisville.

West Virginia swept past Richmond 105-74 for its seventh straight, and in the Carrousel Tournament at Charlotte, Wake Forest and Auburn won their way into the finals.

Wake Forest, the defending champion, edged Florida 55-53. Auburn got its 66-64 victory over St. Joseph after the official decided a tip-in by Kurt Engelbert of St. Joseph came just after the final buzzer and didn't count.

A new thoroughbred race course is being built in Florence, Ky.

Billy Houghton Wins U.S. Sulky Crown For 5th Time

COLUMBUS — William (Billy) Houghton of Brookville, N. Y., still considered a "youngster" at 33, continued to dominate the sport's race and money winning departments in 1956.

Houghton won the money title for the fifth consecutive year and the race winning crown for the fourth straight time, according to figures announced today by the U. S. Trotting Association.

The former farm hand's 1956 earnings were $572,945 and he won 167 heats. The totals in both instances were slightly under his own record breaking pace of 1955 when he banked $599,445 and won 168 races.

Houghton won the money title comfortably but his 167 wins barely withstood the late challenge of Stanley Dancer of New Egypt, N. J., who wound up with 163 victories.

Runnerup among the money winners was John F. Simpson of Maitland, Fla., who earned $455,301. Two other drivers topped the $400,000 mark, Dancer with $425,161 and Joe O'Brien of Shafter, Cal., with $422,618. It was the first time that more than two drivers had earned in excess of $400,000 in a single year.

In the race-winning column, William D. (Bud) Gilmour of Ridgeway, Ontario, Canada was third with 139 wins, 24 more than he had in 1955 when he finished in the same place. Joe Lighthill of Troy, Ohio, was fourth with 121 and Louis Rapone of Caledonia, N. Y., fifth with 116.

Houghton campaigned principally at the metropolitan New York raceways, Yonkers and Roosevelt, but also made side excursions to tracks in all other parts of the country. His principal money winners were the 3-year-old pacers Bachelor Hanover and Belle Acton who collected $80,375 and $75,495 respectively and the aged pacer Stoutsville, who won 10 of 11 races.

Pirates Gain Non-Loop Win At Stoutsville

Pickaway Pirates cagers coasted to a non-league triumph over the Stoutsville Indians, 63 to 42, Tuesday night at Stoutsville.

After leading only 32 to 26 at intermission time, the Pirates poured on the coal in the final two periods to win going away. Near the end of the game Coach Charles Baxter emptied his bench after he was assured the outcome was not doubtful.

Dave Smith was the big gun for Pickaway with 24 points. Boldosier and Echarde gave him assistance with 10 points each.

Hutchinson was high for Stoutsville with 10 points, while teammate Maynard chipped in 9.

Stoutsville reserves won a close decision, 42 to 39.

Standings Tighten

NEW YORK (P)—Both sections of the National Basketball Assn. appeared today to be in for some son-long maneuvering.

The pace-setting Boston Celtics had their eastern lead shaved to three games Tuesday night as they dropped a 110-99 decision to the New York Knickerbockers.

St. Louis was sparked by Bob Pettit's 30 points and Slater Martin's 25. Pettit's showing enabled him to take over the NBA's individual scoring lead with 607 points to 600 for Paul Arizin of Philadelphia.

British Champion To Meet Webb

CHICAGO (AP) — Pat McAteer, regarded as Europe's best current world title prospect at any weight division, meets Chicago's middleweight pride, Spider Webb, in a 10-round bout here tonight.

Webb, 24, will be trying to extend a 17-fight winning string in the nationally televised encounter (10 p. m. CST, ABC) against the British Empire middleweight champion.

McAteer, a native of Birkenhead, England, can punch with either hand but especially is adept with a left hook. The 24-year-old invader has won 42 out of 44 starts and scored 21 knockouts.

Sokolsky's These Days

The Russian relief was a tremendous success despite numerous difficulties, both physical and political. The Bolsheviks were naturally very suspicious of the A.R.A. but they were also very hungry. The American Relief Administration was able to raise and expend $61,566,231.53 in Soviet Russia to save a people who were starving. Americans worked inside Russia and flew the American flag.

Perhaps there was more courage in those days even when one wanted to serve the hungry and broken. Today, when we are so "That American representatives of the Relief Administration shall be given full liberty to come and go and move about Russia."

"That these members shall be allowed to organize the necessary local committees and local assistance free from governmental interference."

U.S. Red Party Hit By Old Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Subversive Activities Control Board ruled for a second time Tuesday that the U. S. Communist party is under control of Moscow.

After the board's first ruling in 1953, a Supreme Court decision last April sent the case back to the board for further proceedings.

In accordance with the Supreme Court decision, the board eliminated from the record the testimony of three government witnesses.

"Unto Us A Child Is Born" A Glad Dream For Joseph

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of studies of the birth and times of Christ. It illuminates the challenge presented Joseph and recounts his rewarding triumph.

By George Cornell
AP News features

Walk slowly now. Think calmly. Joseph. The air is cool and dark and the depths of the night are uncharted. Be not overwise nor overhasty, though the feasts have turned into mourning and the gladness to gall.

"My God, my God!"

Walk slowly, oh Joseph, in the darkness, with shoulders bent and sorrow burning your bones as on a hearth. Search the heart. There are things which seem right to a man, but the end thereof are ways of death.

"Oh God, the very waves of the sea rage in me, foaming over their shame."

HE STOPPED beside a tree and put his hands over his face. His body shook. How lovely she seemed, how fair. But the splendor has turned to ashes, the rubies to clay.

With his fist, Joseph struck the bole of the tree. He turned his drawn face upward, his eyes pinched shut with beseeching. "Oh Lord, give light to thy servant whose spirit is bitter unto death."

How tenderly he had cherished his betrothed, his Mary. Her pledge to him, at his greater age, had been like a healing touch. But the image was fallen and crumbled. His Mary was with child!

Walk slowly, oh Joseph, and meditate your duty. The air is cool and dark. Tread carefully this inner abyss. Judge well your steps.

And what does man do? Why, put her away, speedily! Disown her and make void the betrothal. Leave Mary to disgrace and grief. Sit in judgement on this new life, and ordain condemnation!

Their vows, in that day, were

'Noisy' Trend Irks Symphony Chief

ST. LOUIS — Vladimir Golschmann, conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, returned from a six-month tour of Europe, just in time to learn that rock-n-roll music is the latest fad. "A few years ago, it was much better," he said. "The blues, you know. The blues have some charm. Now the trend—it's noisy. Whatever I hear always sounds like the same song. "Do people really need all that noise?"

But BE NOT troubled, Joseph. Sufficient now is this, thy beautiful Son, given of God, and this, thy Mary, radiant beside you, cradling Him in her arms. All things in their fullness await the unfolding of the Lord.

So they returned to their house, and the Child grew in their love, and within a year, three learned

Eastern nobles came with gifts from Persia, from 1,500 miles or more, and adored the Child, saying their researches had convinced them a new, prominent star had signalled the birth of a sublime One.

Then Joseph learned of Herod's jealousy—his design to slay all children of Bethlehem.

Rise up, Joseph! You are young no more, but you are armed with love. It girds you like strong timber, like the Ebon tree. Rise up, poor carpenter! And stand against your own Goliath.

In the night, with laden burro, they went, taking their Child. Out of Judea toward Egypt, more than 250 miles, mingling with wayfarers, tenting by night, resting under a sycamore tree.

For only a while, they remained in Egypt; then Herod the Great died, and they came back toward the high country of Jerusalem.

BUT WHEN they learned that Archelaus, a loutish son of Herod, now ruled there for Rome, and 2,000 Jews had been crucified, 3,000 slain in riots and 50,000 sold in slavery, they journeyed northward by another route back to their old home in the lowlands of Galilee.

In the newly disjoined kingdom, another son of Herod, called Herod Antipas, ruled in Galilee, and they were safe. So Joseph taught the Boy gently and well, the trade of his hands and the words of the Lord.

Oh Joseph, of the great heart, wearing goodness and understanding. You are strong, Joseph, a man of hard toil, of gnarled hands and faith. For a short moment long ago, you hesitated before this Child, but then, in great love, you battled for Him, and won.

You will endure, Joseph, for out of homeless nights and weary journeys and strength and sacrifice for a Child, you built not beams and trestles but life. Old carpenter, it is said you died at 110, but the structure that you raised lives on beyond the best of wood.

You did not know, Joseph. But that Boy was yours, nourished in your love, and is yours, and all mankind's who want Him.

Thief Helps Cops, Lugs Heavy Safe Back Into Store

MASSILLON, Ohio — Police said 22-year-old Arthur McLaughlin of Canton built a pretty good case against himself Tuesday in the theft of a 300-pound safe from Koonie's confectionary here Monday night.

Officers said they were on their way to investigate the theft Tuesday when McLaughlin hailed them and confided, "I'm the man you're looking for."

They quoted him as saying he had been drinking, broke into Koonie's through a window, ate two ice cream bars, opened the front door and carried the safe to his car.

The police looked in the car and found the safe, unopened on the back seat.

They wouldn't believe McLaughlin when he said no one was with him and asked him if he could carry the safe back into the store.

With no trouble at all, they said, McLaughlin did.

He went to jail.

Florida Gunmen Tied To Ohio Job

MARIETTA — Two gunmen captured in Florida after shooting it out with police are believed to be the men sought for robbing a drive-in restaurant near Cambridge, Dec. 11.

Marietta and Belmont County authorities said a car abandoned by two fleeing holdup men in Marietta a week ago is registered to Herman Maroni, 26, of Morristown, Belmont County.

Maroni and William H. Dayton, 27, of Massillon, were captured Monday night near Palatka, Fla. Police exchanged shots with them during a 26-mile chase which ended when the men smashed up a stolen truck.
